DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

1. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(e) the invention was described in (1) an application for patent, published under section 122(b), by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent or (2) a patent granted on an application for patent by another filed in the United States before the invention by the applicant for patent, except that an international application filed under the treaty defined in section 351(a) shall have the effects for purposes of this subsection of an application filed in the United States only if the international application designated the United States and was published under Article 21(2) of such treaty in the English language.

2. Claims 1-2, 4-10 and 14-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Wang et al. (US 6,366,453 B1).

Wang teaches a display (10, fig. 1) for a computer system comprising: a display screen (12) and a support (14) for supporting the display screen, the support comprising a base (18) and a column (16) attached to the base, the column being provided with a screen support part (shown in fig. 1, not labeled) and with at least one connector (not shown, see col. 2, lines 54-63) to which a module (20) of the computer system may be connected (claims 1 and 15); wherein the connector is located such that when a module is connected thereto, the module is located at least partly behind the display screen (shown in fig. 9) (claim 2); wherein the connectors are connected to an output connection for communication with a processor unit (20) of the computer system (see col. 2, lines 54-63) (claim 4); wherein a processor unit (20) is provided in the support

(after connected, the processor unit forms a part of the support as shown in fig. 7) (claim 5); wherein a power supply unit is provided in the support (module 20 inherently comprising a power supply and 20 forming a part of the support) (claim 6); wherein a power supply unit is located in a base module (20) adjacent the column and behind the base (shown in fig. 7) (claims 7 and 14); wherein the base comprises a pair of rearwardly extending arms (on both sides of 18, fig. 3) interconnected by a forward part (lower portion of 16, fig. 1), and wherein the column is connected to the forward part (shown in fig. 1) (claim 8); wherein the power supply module is adapted to be received in between the rearwardly extending arms (shown in fig. 9) (claim 9); and wherein the power supply module is adapted to supply power to the display screen and any modules connected to the support (see col. 2, lines 46-53) (claim 10).

3. Claims 1 and 11-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(e) as being anticipated by Moscovitch et al. (US 6,343,006 B1).

Moscovitch teaches a display (12, fig. 1) for a computer system comprising: a display screen (16) and a support (92+96) for supporting the display screen, the support comprising a base (92) and a column (96) attached to the base, the column being provided with a screen support part (98) and with at least one connector (14) to which a module of the computer system may be connected (see col. 5, lines 62-64) (claims 1); wherein the column is foldably connected to the base (best shown in fig. 24) (claim 11); wherein the screen support part comprises a first rotating part (between 96 and 98, fig. 18, not labeled) located adjacent the column and a second pivotal connection (30) in the vicinity of the screen whereby the support and display screen support part may be folded into a collapsed configuration (shown in fig. 19A) (claim 12); and wherein the column is provided with a screen support part (98) comprising a sliding connection (between 98 and 96) whereby the display screen is vertically slideable relative to the column (claim 12).

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claim 3 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: The best prior art of record, Wang et al. (US 6,366,453 B1), and Moscovitch et al. (US 6,343,006 B1), taken alone or in combination, fails to teach or fairly suggest a display comprising at least a support comprising a column attached to a base, the column comprising opposite side faces, wherein a plurality of connectors are located on each opposite side face as set forth in claim 3.
